THE Third Generation Project

NEWSLETTER (7.0) - DECEMBER 2022

Education for Climate Justice

The Third Generation Project is an award-winning, international think tank with the mission of providing education on the social problems underlying and coming out of the climate crisis.

The Frontline - Our Blog

“This is my profession since my grandfathers and forefathers; to travel and bring the goats and sheep to mountain areas in summer and go in winter back down to Haripur for 7 months of the year... The past seven years, the forest department stop us.”

The Frontline blog spotlights individuals and communities who can speak to how global systems of environmental, economic, racial, and cultural inequality manifests themselves in order better inform our actions and yours.

Check out our most recent post, here . As part of his Master’s dissertation research, TGP’s Jamie Hinch travelled to Pakistan to research how the country’s world-renowned tree-planting campaign, ‘the 10 Billion Tree Tsunami Afforestation Programme’, is impacting the migratory Bakarwal community. This edition of the frontline shares Jamie’s conversation with Nazir, a member of the Bakarwal community. Nazir reveals how the tree-planting is rupturing his community’s traditional lifeways and exacerbating their marginalisation.

We welcome contributions to The Frontline: if your research collaborators or partners have a story they want shared from the front lines of the climate crisis then reach out! Contact our communications coordinator Annabelle von Moltke at asedvm@st-andrews.ac.uk for more information.

Ongoing Project Updates

The Emerging Researchers Project (ERP):

Applications for our 2023 ERP recently closed and we look forward to announcing our next cohort!

Meanwhile, our 2022 Emerging Researchers (Cate Bone, Yasemin Cag, Marcelina Lekawska and Pia Tiwari) have this term been working their way through part two of the ERP: their desk-based research projects. The research will be used to produce educational outputs to be presented at an event showcasing their work at the start of next term. Keep an eye out on our social media channels for further details!

The Mutual Aid Clinic (MAC):

TGP's latest educational programme, the MAC, focuses upon researching, documenting and examining the history and contemporary politics of a marginalised community- at the moment this is the Scottish Gypsy Traveller community. The students are working with long-term TGP collaborator Roseanna McPhee , a member of the Scottish Gypsy Traveller Community.

Through the MAC, students develop their research skills in a range of areas and practical tasks. A key aim is to replicate the ways in which non-governmental organisations (NGO's) utilise their research teams. Following a brilliant first year, this years' students have been split into three research teams focussing on policy, archival research, and public engagement. We look forward to sharing updates on their work as the year progresses!

Noticeboard

TGP's Bennett Collins and Ali Watson latest article released! Their article focusses on the Maine Wabanaki-State Child Welfare Truth and Reconciliation Commission (MWTRC), highlight it as a strategy of refusal denying settler colonial co-option of this Wabanaki-centred process. Check out the article (open-access) here !

Watch the Emerging Researchers Programme 2021 cohort's presentations!

In light of our upcoming 2022 ERP presentation event to be held in the new year, check out last year's ERP presentations from our recorded event, 'A Morning Discussing Climate Justice'. The presentations are an amazing collection of information and inspiration; they are available to watch here !

Watch TGP's 2022 Climate Fringe event: Climate Justice and Rural Communities in Colombia! In September, TGP presented this fascinating conversation between ERP alumni Juanita Monje and Colombian human rights defender Sandra Ramirez about Sandra's work with rural communities towards climate justice in post-peace-process Colombia. Watch the conversation here !

If there are publications, resources, or events you would like shared and advertised in the next newsletter then please contact TGP's Development and Learning coordinator, Jamie Hinch, at: jh305@st-andrews.ac.uk

Articles, Stories, and Media

A round up of recent press that we have enjoyed:

Image Credit: BBC

"How to Find Your Voice for Climate Action"- Fehinti Balogun.

Fehinti Balogun is an actor, theatre maker, activist, and storyteller. In this brilliant TED talk, Balogun pieces together multiple complex issues - climate change, colonialism, systemic racism - in a talk that's part spoken-word poem, part diagnosis of entrenched global problems. Seeing the connections is a way to unlock collective solutions, he says- and you have the power to reimagine what you think is possible.

"Ethical Storytelling Principles" - Voice of Witness

If you are inspired by Balogun's talk and would like to learn more about digital storytelling, check out this brilliant resource ! Voice of Witness present their framework for ethical storytelling, grounded in the values of respect, dignity, empathy, transparency, collaboration, and equity.

"How to Accomodate Event Attendees with Neurological Needs" - Lisa Jade Hutchings

Following on from the ethical storytelling framework, here's another set of principles we recommend reading through. Hutchings discusses neurodivergence and describes how to practise inclusivity and accessibility. The steps proposed make essential reading for those considering hosting events.

"The Cruelty: A Child Unclaimed" - BBC Sounds

Presenter Davie Donaldson investigates the case of The Unknown Bairn, the nickname for a boy whose body was washed ashore in Tayport, 1971. The story is tragic, and important listening for anyone wanting to understand more about the issues that TGP's Mutual Aid Clinic is working on.
